2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Willes, Jr. U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2003/0055883[Willes].

As per claim 1, Willes, Jr. a method of modeling a communications network using a computer system, the method including: generating a network representation using computer-readable code, the computer-readable code representing structured information;

parsing the network representation (see paragraph 0156);

generating a network model using the parsed network representation (see paragraph 0184 and 0275), the network model including a plurality of network objects and relationships between the plurality of network objects(see fig. 5 and paragraph 0065 and 0286); and storing the network model in memory(see paragraph 0385).

As per claim 2, Willes, Jr. discloses method according to claim 1, further comprising processing a network event using the network model, wherein processing the network event includes identifying one or more of the plurality of network objects, and determining an order of operation on the one or more of the plurality of network objects (see paragraph 0184 and 0275).

As per claim 3, Willes, Jr. discloses a method according to claim 1 wherein the network representation includes at least one of the following: circuit level index; circuit type identification; order of operation indication; delete circuit identification; underlying circuit index; underlying link index; delete object identification; parent circuit identification; and child circuit identification (see paragraph 0154).

As per claims 4-5, Willes, Jr.. discloses a method according to claim 2 wherein the network representation is generated at startup (see paragraph 0144).

As per claims 6, Willes, Jr..discloses a method according to claim 2 wherein the network event comprises at least one of provisioning, circuit provisioning, service provisioning, switch provisioning, rollback, and delete (see paragraph 0155).

As per claims 7, Willes, Jr. discloses a method according to claim 1 wherein the network model includes a middleware bus(see paragraph 0122).

As per claims 8, Willes, Jr. discloses a method according to claim 1 wherein the computer-readable code is in extensible mark-up language (XML)(see paragraph 0109).

As per claims 9, Willes, Jr. discloses a method according to claim 2 wherein processing the network event includes: identifying one or more of the network objects in the network model; and determining an order of operation on the one or more network objects (see fig. 5 and see paragraph 0065).

As per claims 10, Willes, Jr. discloses A method according to claim 1, further including:
generating a graphical representation of the network model(see fig. 5 and 0065); and displaying the graphical representation on a display monitor (see paragraph 0075).

As per claims 11, Willes, Jr. discloses a method according to claim 10 wherein the graphical representation is a graphical user interface, and wherein the graphical user interface is used to modify the network model. (see paragraph 0031

As per claims 12-27, the claims include features similar with features in claims 1-11 discussed above. Thus claims 12-27 are rejected same rational as claims 1-11.
